List of pages and their purposes

- Home page: This is the root parent page that visitors will first visit. It will give some promotional information, as well as direct to the other pages.

- About Us: This will provide information about the store such as the store's history, location, and the goal of providing a space for gamers to find games and play them.

- FAQ: This will be a list of commonly asked questions users may have about the website or the store.

- Popular Games: This will provide a list popular games that the store carries inventory for (just doing popular games to keep the inventory page manageable for my first website).

- Community-Forum: This is a forum where users can talk about games, plan gaming meet-ups, and general information about the store

- Reviews: This is where users can give feedback on games.

- Events: This provides a list of weekly events such as game nights, as well as promotional events

- Newsletter Sign-up: This is where the user can provide their email to receive promotional information.

Navigation

- The user will first encounter the Home Page. At the top and bottom will be a navigation bar (responsive to the viewport) that will direct to the different child pages. The middle of the Home Page will be a promotional banner listing new products and upcoming events; clicking on one of these images will direct the user to the Popular Games or Events page. The top left on every page will be a company logo that will send the user back to the Home Page. In the About Us page, after listing relevant information about the store there will be a further link directing to FAQ's. In the Popular Games page, each item will have a link that directs to the store's Review page.
